

OTHERS IMPLICATED
IN LOCAL ROBBERIES
THE POLICE SAY

While Local Officers Believe William Kellum Is the "Key Man" to Series of Local Thefts, Others Are Implicated.

The examining trial of William Kellum, arrested in Cincinnati this week, and connected by police with the robberies of the homes of Messrs. Charles Triebel, Cleveland Smart and Prof. W. T. Berry, has been continued until next week in City Court.

Chief of Police Mackey and Officer Carl Carpenter have been working very carefully on this case since the first of the year. They are confident that they have sufficient evidence to establish beyond a doubt Kellum's connection with these three robberies. They are not, however, satisfied with his conviction and are of the opinion that he had considerable local assistance in all of the robberies. These officers will probably be enabled to make further arrests in connection with these robberies within the next few days and they may also be enabled to unravel several other robberies which have taken place in Maysville in the past few months in this connection.

Kellum protests his innocence and claims he is a victim of circumstances. He has retained Attorney Frank P. O'Donnell to defend him in the lower court action. The postponed examination has now been set for Thursday afternoon.

The delivery of non-pooled tobacco for sale at the Liberty warehouse has been slowed up somewhat because of the bad weather of the past few days and for this reason there was no sale held at this house on Saturday. STOLEN TOBACCO FOUND
IN LEESBURG BARN

Tobacco Stolen in Harrison and Bracken Counties Is Located By Harrison County Sheriff.

The Cynthia Log Cabin says: Last Friday night thieves stole about 500 pounds of the best tobacco of a crop grown by Ben Thomas and brother on the Homer Oder farm on the Mt. Vernon pike. Spring wagon tracks leading from the barn were followed to near Leesburg and the tobacco was located in an old barn on an unoccupied farm belonging to Mr. Shelby Barnhill, who resides in Scott county. A warrant for the recovery of the tobacco was secured and Sheriff John Ingles and Deputy Sheriff Ammerman went to the Barnhill farm Sunday. They found that about 1,000 pounds more of tobacco had been added to the pile of stolen Burley, it being later identified as the property of Mr. S. M. Robert, of beyond Leesburg. The owners took the tobacco home. When Mr. Barnhill learned that stolen tobacco had been hidden on his farm he came to the place and offered his assistance. He had not been on the farm for several weeks.

It is believed the tobacco was stolen by a bunch of thieves who have been operating in the Leesburg vicinity for some time, but no arrests have been made.

PROMINENT LOCAL WHOLESALE DIED
FRIDAY EVENING

Mr. Almar Dodson, Last Member of Family of Local Wholesale Grocers, Dies Following Stroke of Paralysis.

Mr. Almar Dodson, prominent local wholesale grocer, head of the Omar Dodson grocery, died at his home in Third street Friday evening about 8:15 o'clock following a stroke of paralysis. Mr. Dodson had been in declining health for the past three years and had not been actively identified with his grocery business during that time.

Practically all of his life had been spent in Maysville in the wholesale grocery business with his father, the late George Dodson, and his brother, the late Omar Dodson. The father and two brothers built up one of the most important wholesale grocery establishments in Northern Kentucky and through Mr. Almar Dodson's keen business judgment, this success was largely due.

Mr. Dodson is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William Dorn, of Ft. Thomas and Mrs. Robert Fitter, of this city, and one son, Mr. George Dodson, of this city, who is now the active head of the Dodson establishment.

The funeral will be held Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the church of the Nativity, of which Mr. Dodson was long a member, with services by the Right Rev. Bishop Burton, of Lexington. The burial will be made in the Maysville cemetery.

Dr. J. W. Lawrence, of Dallas, Tex., one of the outstanding pupil orators of the Southern Baptist Convention, will preach at the First Baptist church on Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock and a very large audience should hear him.

Dr. Lawrence will be remembered by those who attended the Conference on Christian Fundamentals which was held in this city last November. He was the last speaker on the program and considered by many as being one of the best, if not the best speaker in the list. It will be remembered that his great address on "The Characteristics of the Devil" made a very strong impression upon the local public.

It is quite fortunate that the people of this section have another opportunity of hearing Dr. Lawrence at this time. The entire public is cordially invited to attend this service.

TREATY FORMALLY
RATIFIED TODAY
BY IRELAND

Irish Free State Treaty Ratified — Griffith Leads Provisional Government.

Dublin, Jan. 14. — The Anglo-Irish treaty, creating the Irish Free State, was unanimously ratified today by the South Ireland Parliament. Eamonn de Valera and his supporters, who opposed the treaty in the Dail Eireann, were absent.

A provisional government of which Arthur Griffith is president, was constituted, comprising Michael Collins, William Cosgrove, Eamon J. Duggan, P. J. Hogan, Finlan Lynch, Joseph McGrath, Professor John Macneil and Kevin O'Higgins.

The provisional government faces its first difficulty in the threatened strike of railwaymen called for midnight tonight. The managers of four Dublin roads last night made an offer through Mr. Griffith, which never was rejected by the men, that if they remained at work the companies would find employment for three months for all those deemed superfluous to the operation of the roads under an arbitration award.

PRACTICAL SERVICE

Splendid work has been done by the veterans' bureau in sending a force of men into the field to establish personal contact with former service men who are disabled by reason of their military service and who are entitled to compensation, vocational training or insurance under the law. In this campaign a total of 148,650 veterans have been interviewed personally, and as a result of these interviews 78,907 applications have been made for relief. It may be assumed that had not the veterans' bureau taken this personal interest in the soldiers, all, or nearly all, of the 78,907 would have failed to avail themselves of the assistance which Congress voted them.

There were some mighty good soldiers in the American army who do not read the newspapers or keep abreast of current events. Consequently it is not to be wondered at that thousands were found who were ignorant of the provisions of the law which entitle them to relief. The clean-up squad sent into the country by the veterans' bureau found instances where men were suffering from permanent disability contracted in the service and clearly were entitled to financial help, but didn't know it. It was necessary that these cases be taken up at once, because it might have been impossible later to establish the service origin of their afflictions.

There is something quite human about this work, something that goes beyond the formality and red tape of government routine, and those responsible for it deserve public approval. It is not practicable for the veterans' bureau to keep in personal communication with every man to advise him of his legal rights, but this effort to reach as many as possible is highly commendable.

When Congress enacted the laws providing for relief for disabled veterans of the war, it meant that every man entitled to it should have it. No distinction was made between the illiterate and the literate, the city man and the country man. The knowledge that thousands of brave and loyal men were being deprived of financial help because of their ignorance is not pleasing.

The results of this clean-up campaign make it plainly the duty of the government to utilize every agency at its command to spread among the people information concerning disability allowances, and there should be as much effort put forward to advise those entitled to help concerning their rights as to prevent frauds being perpetrated upon the government. It has been shown that nearly 80,000 veterans, some of them blind or nearly so, others tubercular and others nervous wrecks, would have failed to secure the relief that a grateful nation has provided had they not been sought out and helped by representatives of the veterans' bureau. May this real service be continued.—Washington Post.

DEBS

Eugene V. Debs was a so-called political prisoner. He was released from prison by a man raised through politics to a position in which he could bring about that release. We had accepted that situation and decided to let Mr. Debs go his way in peace until he seized the publicity attendant upon his release to renew the work of spreading his philosophy. That position he takes demands a protest.

First, we are told he will not accept "a full pardon" from the President, as that implies a guilt he does not acknowledge. It is the case he should be allowed to return to prison. Whether he acknowledges guilt or not, he has been tried and found guilty. That is sufficient evidence of guilt to be generally accepted by Americans. The chances are that Debs' obstruction of the draft, however conscientious his reasons, did handicap the recruiting and training and equipping of American soldiers sufficiently so that several more Americans were killed or wounded in the war on his account. The blood of those Americans is on the hands of Eugene Debs. No sentimental rot about the "finesse of spirit" of his 2,300 fellow convicts can wipe away the stain.

He has been proved guilty. He is guilty. If the President wishes to release him as a political prisoner, that is a matter for the conscience of the President to decide, but it does not alter the guilt.

Again, Debs is so impressed with the love of his fellow convicts and with their fine spirit that he would open the doors and give them all liberty. That is a fine sentimental idea. It is not a thought. Thought would recall that every one of these 2,300 men who so loved Eugene Debs are mail robbers, counterfeiters, or otherwise enemies of society who have made life harder for all the rest of the millions of Americans who are law abiding and decent.

Debs would "expose the viciousness of the system which has for its motive the reformation of mankind by placing him behind prison walls." Again a fine sentiment, but a totally erroneous premise. That is not the motive of the system. Perhaps we hope to reform these men, but that is not the reason for putting them in prison. We put them in prison to protect society with all its law abiding citizens from them. They are dangerous. They are shut up, just as a dangerous beast would be shut up.

"Man is the only animal that cages the victims of his system," says Debs resentfully.

True. The other animals kill their victims. Not many years ago man also killed the majority of those who preyed upon society. Thieves were hanged in much greater numbers than murderers.

Civilization is advancing in spite of Debs, not because of him.—Chicago Tribune.

PENROSE BACKED HARDING

The country owes a debt of gratitude to the late Senator Penrose for his aid in securing the presidential nomination for Mr. Harding at the Chicago convention. It will be remembered that the Pennsylvania delegation was one of the first to throw its support to Harding when it became evident that the convention was hopelessly deadlocked over the three candidates who were the first to take the lead. Other states followed Pennsylvania and rolled up a huge majority for Mr. Harding. Senator Penrose was too ill to be at Chicago personally, but he kept in close touch with the proceedings by private wire, and it is no secret that the delegates from his state looked to the Senator for guidance.

MINOR DIFFERENCES
SHOULD BE SUNK
BY PARTY IN POWER

Republican National Chairman Extols
Partisanship in Address to Women Voters.

New York. — The sinking of minor differences in order to discharge the broad responsibility that is imposed upon a party when it comes into authority, was urged by Chairman John T. Adams, of the Republican National Committee, in an address recently before the Women's National Republican Club. Mr. Adams said in part:

"The Woman's National Republican Club sounds good to a Republican who believes in our system of government. Those who have been party men all their lives are naturally in favor of women being party women. In our bi-party country, perhaps the best thing for a woman is to be a Republican partisan; the second best thing, a Democratic partisan; and about the poorest thing she can do, politically, is to be a non-partisan or a woman partisan. There is about as much logic in the women forming a political party of their own, as in having the green-eyed, or the red-haired, or the bald-headed people set themselves up as a political party. Every time we learn of the organization of a woman's Republican club, or a woman's Democratic club, either one, we think the women are going to justify our confidence, that when they get their political 'rights' they would recognize their political responsibilities. Good Republicans are better Americans, and they would much rather have the women become Democrats than have them organize under the pale banner of non-partisanship or the factional standard of a woman's party."

"There never was a time when greater problems confronted our country than now, nor when responsible leaders faced greater difficulties in the solution of those problems. It was never more important than now that Americans, when considering public questions, should be guided by their views on fundamental principles of government, rather than by individual or factional interests. Few greater misfortunes could befall our country in these trying times than to have our civic energies frittered away in contests among groups, factions, occupational interests, or social divisions."

"Just as we feel a responsibility to the nation, which we believe must lead us into one or the other of the great political parties, so we should have a sense of responsibility for the party that will favor a proper measure of solidarity, or unification. Your political party will not hold your respect if it fails to keep its promises. We don't believe that the millions who vote the Republican ticket a year ago were united as to all details of party policy. But we do believe that there was sufficient community of general aim and purpose to warrant the sinking of minor and individual differences. In order to discharge the great, broad, general responsibility that is imposed upon a party when it comes into authority."

"Republicans have always had more of this capacity to submerge the minor differences for the sake of the major and national accomplishments. Our traditions have been achievement, of efficiency, of getting results, of doing the job. For two generations the nation has never failed to turn to our party in any crisis in which there was a compelling demand for these qualities. A little over a year ago, after some experience with another leadership, the country turned over to us its mandate — about the biggest task in national rehabilitation that has ever been turned over to any party."

"We can take a just satisfaction in the ten months of Republican administration. Our Congress has made a record in constructive, progressive legislation that has hardly been equaled by any previous Congress. We have restored peace to our country and have led the world farther on the highway of disarmament than it has ever before traveled in all its history. "Before us there is opportunity and urgent necessity for further achievement. In order to get results there is need for mutual trust and confidence; for a broadness of vision that shall be able to overlook minor interests for the sake of great essentials.

"We ask nobody to surrender any of his right of individual opinion. We recognize that Wyoming is a part of the United States the same as Rhode Island, and that Oregon has the same interest and must have the same voice on questions affecting the national welfare as Massachusetts. We want our historic party to be a clearing house of absolutely free, unfettered, and unbiased individual judgments. We ask only that measure of generosity and tolerance that will make possible the compromises, the agreements, the adjustments, on which almost all legislative accomplishments must be based."

"Precisely because Republicans have always been capable of making these concessions of common sense to the common good, we have earned the confidence of the nation. Just in the measure that we shall continue capable of such mutual concessions, such practical compromises, we shall deserve continued tenure of that confidence."

"Knowing as well as we do, the persons at Washington and throughout the country, in whom is centered the responsibility for our performance, we feel able to give your assurance that our party is going to continue its successes, to lead the nation out into a better time, and to deserve of our people and the world the good will that must accrue to sound leadership, high purposes, and broad, constructive achievement."

With fifty-five per cent. of the population urban and but forty-five on the farms, it is pointed out that some means must soon be taken looking to an amelioration of the hardships of farm life, and an increase of farm profits, or food products will rise to such prices as will make national legislative measures, always to be objected to when passed in the interests of a special class, a national necessity. That the agricultural conference will produce results, as did the unemployment conference, is confidently expected in Congress.

New York Letter

by Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — We aren't especially sensitive here in this big city, because we know that no matter what the rest of the country may say about us, they like to come and visit us pretty well, after all, and anyway, we know what a fine city we are. But when the chief executive of our own state goes on record as favoring "more insane asylums near the metropolitan district," it does ruffle us a bit. And that's what Governor Miller did the other day.

—NY—

Just how this sort of advice has been taken, I haven't heard. But it's something for a good many of us to consider. It was chalked the other day—for a short time—in gold bold letters on the door of a professor in one of our city colleges: "He brief. Remember what a hit the short skirts made!"

—NY—

When who desert their families in New York city are going to have to explain to a woman hereafter. Somehow I believe if there is any one step which could help toward cutting down that particular crime it would be just that. District Attorney Joah H. Hamilton evidently agrees, because he has just placed Mrs. Pauline O. Field, new Assistant District Attorney, in charge of the Abandonment Bureau with instructions to prosecute to the limit. Not only a woman, you notice, but a married woman!

—NY—

Alice Brady, that talented, polished young actress, is playing under the management of her father at the Playhouse in a new melodrama filled with thrills and with considerable more character analysis than we ever got in the old melodrama, however good it might be as to action. "Drifting" is the rather intriguing title of the play and it tells the story of a girl who insisted upon "seeing life" even at considerable expense of experience. She went to China under the chaperonage of two missionaries, but she didn't stay very close either to them or their ideas once she was there. She sank jazz in a Shanghai cabaret which does sound like a pretty bad combination. Then in Tung Kow, where she visited the missionaries every spring, she met "Hudlands McKiney," an officer and a gentleman, gone wrong. They almost wrecked their future together by being afraid to confess to each other their pasts. Finally, however, it is all put honestly behind them and they redeem each other.

Even in the hasty shifting life of a burglar, it would almost seem as though some kind of address were necessary. But Adolph Blisterer, arrested the other day in connection with burglaries totaling $20,000, proved to the satisfaction of the court that he was honest in declaring that he had none. Most of the time after dark he was "en route," he explained. Daytime he spent in branches of the public library, and for some few hours each night, he surreptitiously entered the basement of an apartment house on 79th street and slept in a bathtub conveniently located there. When arrested, Blisterer wore his entire household effects around his waist under his clothes. They consisted of a bath towel with a cake of soap and several needles with thread wrapped in its folds. The police said that in spite of his informal housekeeping he was extremely neat.

—NY—

Shall we come to the point of traveling by weight rather than by numbers? Will there be a set of scales or a tape measure instead of a metre in each taxicab? It almost looks as though something of the sort would have to be worked out. For Magistrate Corrigan has ruled that ten midgets may ride in a taxi at the same rate as a full sized man. The ten midgets rode in one taxi from their home at No. 10 West 70th street to a Washington Heights theater. The meter registered $1.50. "Three dollars," said the chauffeur. "How come?" demanded the leading midget. "Five passengers go for the meter change," the chauffeur explained. "Every additional person is extra." The midgets took the case to court. And won. Now then, how about giants? And will it be perfectly safe and economical to go fat if only one isn't too long?

There's a difference between being in love and being married, but there are no differences when the proper amount of each are blended.

If you want to start something in a crowd of women, just tell them of some woman who has run in a three-year-old hat as a new creation.

Those people who claim we ought to work only two hours a day will never realize their dreams, because such a condition as that would necessitate the working of the criminal court machinery night and day.

METHODIST PASTOR AND WIFE ARE SHOWERED

People of Second M. E. Church, South, Remember Their Pastor and His Wife.

It is with deep gratitude that we take occasion to mention in this public manner the kind thoughtfulness of the people of the Second M. E. Church, South in their recent and valuable remembrances to their pastor and his wife.

We were agreeably surprised by a warm reception upon our arrival late in the old year. A number of the church, despite the inclemency of the winter weather, were present awaiting the train's arrival. As we stepped out on the station platform, a cordial greeting met us and filled our hearts with cheer and geniality as we realized that friendship and friendly courtesies still abound and make this old world warmer, wiser and better. Conducting us home, we found upon our entrance there warm rooms and a well-provisioned table, while the kitchen with its abundance of good things prepared aforetime for this very event reminds us of those harvest scenes and euphoric plentiful described by the master pen of Irving in his picturesque "Legend of Sleepy Hollow." We cannot appreciate too highly the kindness and loving care thus expressed by these members of the church and friends to the cause, who so generously divided their substance with us. It is a case of pure fellowship and love, we believe, and in God's name we wish to thank you all.

No less agreeable was the party of visitors who came on the evening of January 10th, bringing presents of various sorts: useful, elegant and ornamental, they were. We cannot slight the friendliness of those represented there, and we wish them all the very best.

DON'T MISTAKE THE CAUSE

Many Maysville People Have Kidney Trouble And Do Not Know It.

Do you have backache? Are you tired and worn out? Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed? Are the kidney secretions irregular? Highly colored; contain sediments? Likely your kidneys are at fault. Weak kidneys give warning of distress.

Head the warning; don't delay—Use a tested kidney remedy. Read this Maysville testimony. Bryan Greenlee, proprietor grocery store, 238 West Third street, says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney troubles and I suffered a lot from backache. There was a deep seated pain across the center of my back. I was repairing machinery at that time and when doing any kind of stooping work I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys were not acting regularly and in other ways showed signs of disorder. I went to Wood & Son's Drug Store and got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. They fixed me up in good shape and I have never been bothered since." Price 60 cents, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Greenlee had. best the New Year can bring them and trust that God will render to them both in a temporal and spiritual way far more than they have given; and we are sure that He will, for in this also the old and tried text holds good: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Nor can we neglect mention of the kindness of our official board for its improvement of the interior and exterior of the parsonage premises. The Ladies' Aid Society generously furnished a rug; the Sunday school helped here and there in the rooms, class by class, with paper and paint and tidy fixings that made a home worth while and life worth living. For all these and other thoughtful signs of regard and faith we are bound at all times to give thanks and to take courage in the Lord. Unto you all we extend hearty and loving greetings and pray for you the very best blessings that a compassionate God can give, and look forward to a year of joyful and efficient co-operation in Him.

Fraternally yours,
E. H. CROWSON, P. C.

REVOLUTION OR EVOLUTION IN EDUCATION

Washington, D. C. — Senator William H. King, of Utah, addressing a citizens' association on education said:

"There is too much superficiality in our educational system. We need more of the genuine and less of the counterfeit. In addition to the teaching of things that are practical, there should be imparted to pupils the knowledge of moral things and values. We want an educational system that is based on the conception of God as a ruler of man and nation. We must teach the solidarity of humanity and the interdependency of men and nations."

His idea of superficiality in present-day public school education received support from Commissioner of Education John James Tigert, appointed to that position by President Harding, from the University of Kentucky. The commissioner believes that "within the next few years. The eye is man's chief source of knowledge. Thomas Edison has estimated that 80 per cent. of the knowledge we receive comes through the eye, nine per cent. through the ear, and six per cent. through the other senses. Our methods have greatly accentuated abstract thinking, and not enough seeing, in our schools."

Educators who have in the past marshaled European educational ideas as arguments for the academic system so much in vogue in American public schools, have had to withstand not only these jolts, but one from M. Leon Bernard, French Minister of Education, who is reported seriously to have proposed that Latin be relegated from its present place as backbone of collegiate education to a minor position among required school studies, because of the modern need of young men and women to learn more of practical matters and less of abstractions.

NEW YEAR HOPES BASED ON SELF-EVIDENT FACTS

Washington, D. C. — Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger, after an exhaustive study of economic conditions anticipates confidently "that 1922 will take its place in history as one of the landmarks in the record of human progress. Men have turned their faces definitely in the right direction; they have set their feet in the paths to restore security and prosperity; they have faced their minds on the higher and better things."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace says: "The coming year should be a better one for the farmer and for those who deal with him than was 1921."

Mr. Wallace cites the improvement in credit conditions through regular channels and by special agencies created to meet the farmers' needs, bringing a lowering of interest rates; reductions already made in freight rates on farm products; reduction in the cost in 1922 of producing farm crops and probable increase in the price of grain, following what seems likely to be a decrease in acreage planted to such crops, as reasons for agriculture optimism.

American Valuation Plan Can be Easily Administered

J. B. Reynolds, Former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Favors American Valuation

Invoicing Practically Worthless

"These invoices—to give them all the credit that they are worth at all—average case are worth a little less, perhaps, than the paper on which they are printed. Now, I say, that after a long experience in handling invoices, and by that I mean that the certification that the consul abroad has to make amounts to nothing. The invoice goes through on the day before a ship sails; they go into a consular office in any part of the world where there is a large business between that country and the United States. You have a perfect string of people filing in with invoices to get the invoice off on the next boat with the automatic affixing of a stamp. All it is a matter of signing the consul's name. And all that it does is to certify that that invoice is on the right colored paper, is made out in the right legal form, and nothing else."

"There is a proposition now put up against that. It seems to me it is a very simple one. Instead of putting the duties, assessing the ad valorem duties which are duties assessed on the value of goods, on the foreign or invoice value, the proposition is to put these duties on the value of the goods in the United States. The value of the goods in the United States is not an unknown quantity. This is something that does not change and will not change. And the papers of the manufacturers, the jobbers and the sellers of every kind, only way to have duties that will stay are at the disposal of the Government. what they mean and mean what they say, in the tariff law, is to have a duty We are dealing with an absolutely known and certain proposition and the whole idea is simply that where there is an ad valorem rate of duty it has on goods, we do not try to assess this changes from day to day and from on the foreign value, which is largely hour to hour."

A Feasible Plan

"The American valuation plan, in my judgment, is absolutely possible of administration and also feasible of enforcement. There is nothing in it that cannot be carried on after a little practice just as well as the present law. The idea that it is impossible to find out what the American value of a piece of goods, is when you are supposed to find out the foreign value seems to me preposterous. There is one more thing to be kept in mind. The only way to take care of depreciated currency at the present time and to make the manufacturer safe and able to carry on his business under depreciated currency, is to put aside the need for the manufacturer will be assessed on the goods with which he has to compete, and I wonder one day what it is going to be the result. He must have it fixed on the stable thing in the financial world, and that is United States money. This is something that does not change and will not change. And the the papers of the manufacturers, the jobbers and the sellers of every kind, only way to have duties that will stay are at the disposal of the Government. what they mean and mean what they say, in the tariff law, is to have a duty We are dealing with an absolutely known and certain proposition and the whole idea is simply that where there is an ad valorem rate of duty it has on goods, we do not try to assess this changes from day to day and from on the foreign value, which is largely hour to hour."

WOULD PUT TEETH IN PROHIBITION LAW

Changes in State Prohibition Law Making It Much More Stringent Agreed Upon.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14. — Principal provisions of the bill to strengthen the Kentucky prohibition enforcement law were agreed on here Friday.

Those in conference with Attorney General Charles I. Dawson were N. A. Palmer of the Kentucky Anti-Saloon League, and Commonwealth's Attorneys J. Mott Daniels of Beattyville; Joseph M. Lawton, Louisville; Henry DeHaven Moorman, of Harborsburg; and John J. Howe of Carrollton, legislative committee of the Commonwealth's Attorneys' Association.

The measure would give police and county courts concurrent jurisdiction with circuit courts on all liquor charges except moonshining, where the penalty does not exceed a fine of $300 and a sixty-day jail sentence. It contains a mandatory requirement that all persons convicted be placed under $1,000 peace bonds in lieu of which they would serve ninety day in jail.

MINISTERS WOULD BAR SUNDAY LEAF DELIVERIES.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 14. — Elkhorn Baptist Ministers' Association Friday in a resolution sent to James C. Stone, president and general manager of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Marketing Association, ask that a "Blue Sunday" be held for burley tobacco growers. The resolution requests that the warehouses controlled by the association not be opened on Sunday for the receipt of tobacco.

HAYS TO LEAVE CABINET FOR MOVIE JOB.

Washington, Jan. 14. — Will Hays, postmaster general, has decided to accept the offer to become virtual head of the motion picture industry.

Hays' acceptance of the $100,000 offer, made by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, will be given at a conference with representatives of the association today. He is virtually certain to leave the cabinet on March 4.

The proposed sterilizing process might be used to advantage in other places than inside the penitentiaries. The fast young man is counted out early in the race.

BURCH JURY APPEARS HUNG.

Los Angeles, Jan. 14. — Two women jurors were understood to be holding out today for acquittal of Arthur C. Burch, on trial for the alleged murder of John Belton Kennedy.

After six hours' deliberation the jury was unable to reach a verdict and was locked up last night. Burch plainly was worried. He lost the nonchalant bearing he had maintained throughout the trial.

"I will be 4 to 1 it's a hung jury," he said with an attempt at cheerfulness.

MOTHER AND TWO SONS HURT TO DEATH.

Marietta, Ohio, Jan. 14. — A mother and her two sons were burned to death early this morning, when the home of Andrew Craig, near Portersfield, 18 miles west of this city, was destroyed by fire.

The dead: Mrs. Cherry Craig, 36, wife of Andrew Craig; her sons, Lyle, 9, and Donald, 3.

The bodies were taken from the ruins after the father had walked a mile through the snow to summon assistance when his effort to save the family failed.

Ministerial associations all over the country have taken up a fight to obtain a better standard of morals among the young folks. This will do some good but until father takes the matter into his hands with a club, and mother wields a good switch the situation will go on from bad to worse. Conditions have reached the jumping off place, when strictly moral young folks are ostracized from many innocent pleasures because they will not go the limit.—Falmouth Outlook.

Jim ("Sailor") White, the strong man of the Navy, is in the habit of pulling loaded freight cars with his teeth and cracking railroad spikes between his thumb and forefinger. He was out of a job, and his energy, with no outlet, was becoming terrific. The Legion succeeded in placing him — opening and closing doors in a club.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif. — "I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you are a 'friend indeed' to me." —Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1043 Byram St., Los Angeles, California.
